LAWRENCE | KU tries to nip Internet piracy

To deter students from illegally downloading music or movies in student housing, the University of Kansas has instituted a zero-tolerance policy.

Beginning this fall, KU will deactivate ResNet Network access for residence-hall students if the school is told of a copyright violation and an appeal is denied. Students could still use computers on campus labs and use their university e-mail addresses.

| The Associated Press |
Scholarship, interior design.

Area students go to workshops at KU

Area students attended workshops on music and politics this summer at the University of Kansas.

More than 380 junior high and high school students from 17 states attended Midwestern Music Camps.

The camps provide instrumental, vocal and keyboard students a variety of musical experiences, including opportunities to participate in full symphony orchestras, choirs, bands, jazz ensembles and music classes.

Those who attended Marching Band Leadership Camp July 8-12 were Tayvia Kemp of El Dorado, a student at Flinthills Junior High School in Butler County, and Aaron Fisher of Wichita, a student at Maize High School.

Tayvia Kemp also attended the Senior High Band, Orchestra and Choir Institute June 17-23, along with Morgan Brethches of Wichita, a student at Robert Goddard Middle School, and Devin Alvarez, a student at Southeast High School.

Those who attended Junior High Band and Orchestra Camp, June 10-16, were Tara Kemp of El Dorado, a student at Flinthills Junior High School, and Brent Nance of Wichita, a student at Eisenhower Middle School, Goddard.

Three area students were among 48 high school seniors from across Kansas chosen to participate in the Youth Civic Leadership Institute at the KU Dole Institute of Politics July 11-13.

They are Chaney Calvery and Kameron Mack, both of Heights High School, and Michael Pello of Benton, a student at Circle High School, Towanda.

The civic leadership program is designed to foster appreciation and involvement in public service.
The University of Kansas School of Allied Health recognized students for their exceptional accomplishments with scholarships and awards.

Rayana Adra, Dan Brown and Amelia Hund, all of Wichita, each received a June Hull Sherrid Scholarship.

K. Britney Jurgensen of Valley Center, William M. Diedrich Award for Outstanding Student in Speech-Language Pathology.

Christina Mueller Shah of Wichita, Barbara Reber Umlauf Memorial Scholarship.